WOOD LIKES 'EM.

Says the Negro Soldiers Do Well in the Philippines.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The negro troops are to sail for the Philippines before most of the white organizations, the last of which will not leave this country until early in January, 1907.

The following statement was issued from the War Department in explanation of the orders:

"There was a time, between 1903 and 1905, when the colored regiments were not sent to the Philippines at all. In 1905, however, this policy was tentatively changed and the Twenty-fourth Infantry, a colored regiment, was sent to the Philippines, and is now there. The service of the Twenty-fourth Infantry in the Philippines has been entirely satisfactory, and it is thought that the service of the other regiments will be."

In reporting upon this subject Gen. Wood stated:

"I recently visited and made an inspection of the departments of the Visayas and Mindanao, and found the Twenty-fourth Infantry very well liked by the civil authorities in the neighborhood of its various stations. In fact, at Tacloban, the Governor expressed particular appreciation of the fine conduct of this regiment."

"Because of this report and experience the General Staff recommended and the department decided it to be wise to return to the former policy of equal foreign service of all the regiments of the mobile army."

"The present assignment of the other colored regiments to the Philippines is merely for an equal distribution of foreign service. They have not been there for four years. It now becomes fair to them and to other regiments that they be assigned to the Philippines in due order."

"Foreign service, it should be stated, increases the pay of the men 50 per cent. and counts double as a term of retirement. It was pointed out at the department, therefore, that the idea that these orders were prejudicial to the colored troops or otherwise made account of the Brownsville affair, was utterly absurd."

TO SEND THEM BACK.

Discharged Discharged Philippine Soldiers To Be Returned To The United States.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The authorities at the Philippines are determined to rid the islands of all undesirable persons, and for this reason they have decided to account for all dishonorably discharged soldiers. It is stated that after their discharge the men have been accustomed to hang around the barracks.

The military courts that heretofore sentenced soldiers to dishonorable discharge will impose a term of imprisonment, during which the offender will be transported to the United States. In this way it will become impossible for a dishonorably discharged soldier to be set at liberty on the islands.

Brewery Workers' Ball.

Arrangements have been made for the first annual dance ball to be given by the Louisville brewery workers at the benefit of the sick fund of the United Brewery Workers of America, at Lederer, Knott Hall, Sixth and Walnut streets, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. All of the brewery workers in Louisville, New Albany and Jeffersonville have united to make the ball a success, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

REGULARS TO SERVE AGAIN WITH MILITIA.

Planning Out Details For Summer Encampments—Taft's New Bill.

Washington, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Plans are being made at the War Department for the detail of the regulars to duty with the militia at the State encampments. The officers who have attended these places in the last year agree that great benefit to the National Guardsmen is derived from the presence of the soldiers and the officers of the regular establishment. The command officers are employed as observers and instructors and in giving lectures which are of value to the militia officers. The regular companies serve as a model of bearing and as examples in the performance of duty.

Secretary Taft will send to Congress next week the draft of a bill for the organization of volunteer regiments in time of war similar to those organized in 1898 for service in the Philippines, which were offered by the officers of the Regular Army. The measure is intended to eradicate the plan of having State volunteer regiments organized and officered by civilian officers.

Christmas Cards At St. Paul's.

In compliance with numerous requests the special musical services rendered at St. Paul's Episcopal church by the full vested choir last Sunday evening will be repeated to-night at 8 o'clock. The interesting feature was the beautifully rendered old traditional English Carol which have been sung in England for centuries at Christmas tide. The soloists are Mrs. Will Schmitt, Miss L. Murray, Mr. George Perry, Mr. Fred O. Nussel, Mr. Robert M. Kerr, organist and director, and Mr. Charles Lettier, violinist.

The following is the programme: Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in Mann Hymn, H. Vesper, The First Noel, Good King Wenceslas, God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen, The Three Kings of Orient Are, Sleep, Holy Babe, Holy Night, Silent Night, Anthem, Hark, Hark, My Soul, Shanty, Recessional Hymn, G. Koester.

"RUBE" CARNIVAL AT THE COLISEUM WEDNESDAY.

A "rube" carnival, in which these participating must do the work of farmers will be given at the Coliseum next Wednesday night. Twenty prizes will be distributed among those participating and the prizes are now on exhibition. Professor Merrick, leader of the Coliseum band, has arranged a programme consisting of songs known nearly by farmers throughout the country and the band members will be dressed the farm hands just in from a hard day's work in the field. To-morrow night the High School and Y. M. C. A. band teams will also. The game tomorrow will be a battle royal. They are very evenly matched. There will be dancing as usual every night during the week.

READY FOR FRAY

Legislators Gathering For the Tennessee Session.

CONSIDERABLE MANEUVERING
OVER THE SPEAKERSHIP.

BOTH GOVERNORS BUSY ON THEIR MESSAGES.

APPOINTMENTS DECIDED ON.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The fact that the Fifty-fifth session of the General Assembly of Tennessee will convene on Monday is emphasized by the scenes in the hotel lobbies tonight. Nearly all of the 132 members were in town to-night, and to these must be added all the big guns of the Democratic party and a great horde of seekers after office under the Legislature or under Gov. Patterson's administration. The several candidates for Speaker of the Senate and House are keeping open house at the Maxwell or Inland Hotels, and the rooms of the more promising candidates have been jammed all day.

There are five candidates for Speaker of the Senate, but the race seems to be between E. G. Tolbert, of Cumberland county, and J. J. Bean, of Moore, with the former's prospects the brightest. In the House, Marr, of Davidson; Gordon, of Dyer, and Cunningham, of Montgomery, are the leaders, although there are four or five other announced candidates who seem to think they have a chance. There is some prospect of a deadlock between the leaders, and then some one of the others or a dark horse may have a chance.

Considerable Maneuvering.

There is considerable maneuvering over these speakerships, as on the selection depends more or less the interests of some big enterprises. For this reason the Legislators, who are not candidates are being handshaken by other than candidates. The liquor, railway and insurance interests are all vitally interested in the choice, and they are keeping in extremely close touch with the situation. Strange to say, and contrary to the custom in former days, neither of the interests named is seeking anything from the Legislature.

What they are trying to ward off is annoying legislation hatched by their enemies. The insurance interests are going to have a hard fight, but the whisky men will likely only lose three or four more seats. The liquor, however, is resigned to this. But they feel they must watch any movement looking to the extension of the Adams law to the whole State.

Democratic Caucuses.

The Democratic caucuses for the selection of officers in each house have been called for 10 o'clock Monday morning, and it is possible organization will be effected on Tuesday in both houses. Gov. Cox is at work on his farewell message, and Gov.-elect Patterson, who arrived from Memphis on Thursday, is also blocking out his inaugural address and message. The inauguration will take place about January 15.

Memphis will send a large delegation, composed of prominent men and women, and an effort will also be made to bring prominent people from other towns. Patterson's friends want to make it a gala occasion. The question, however, is whether the fellows who want to have their friends visit the Capitol will do so.

The railroads are leaning favor to the members of the Legislature, but they are not inclined to grant favors to Tom, Dick and Auntie merely to please the sons. There is an anti-railway plank in the Democratic State platform, but this will not prevent the members from riding free. No legislation in accordance with that plank is likely to receive sanction, although such a bill is sure to be introduced in both houses.

Governor's Appointments.

It seems to be pretty well settled that Gov. Patterson will give out his appointments immediately after he assumes office. He has decided to appoint W. D. Scruggs, of Fayette county, private secretary, and Miss Lummie Davis, of Davidson, stenographer. The Governor announced on Thursday that he would give no consideration to office-seekers until after the inauguration, but this announcement has caused no dismay. Every train arriving to-day brought additional applicants.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO TWELVE IN PAST WEEK.

Heart Disease Caused Nine Out of the 102 Deaths in Seven Days—

This great yearly sale marks an epoch in our affairs. It interests more people than anything else we do. Its bargain possibilities surpass even our most attractive offerings at other times. Economical buyers wait for it. It has become a fixed event with lovers of dainty lingerie. To the thousands that have been awaiting this announcement, we say now, come and feast yourself as long as the good things last. Notwithstanding the enviable record established last January, we offer at this time values even greater, despite the very sharp advances in all cotton materials.

In buying such enormous quantities, and placing our orders last April, we secured especial trade concessions, which permit our selling this $25,000 stock of Underwear at even lower figures than prevailed a year ago. The prices quoted below indicate briefly what you may expect in the way of values. Entire south store devoted to this sale. Goods arranged on great tables, marked in plain figures for easy choosing.

(NOTE—Each garment illustrated in the big picture at the top of this ad. was drawn from life. Every garment in stock at special prices.)

33c This Skirt.

Corset Covers.

In addition to the four covers featured below, we have thousands of others equally as attractive. The stock represents the very newest ideas in corset cover construction, and the styles are all exclusive and cannot be found in other stores.

25c—Four select styles of covers; worth 50c.
50c—Eight beautiful styles; worth 90c.
75c—Ten styles; worth $1.00 and $1.25.

$1.00, up a few cents at a time to $10.00, for a most dazzling array of dainty covers.

Drawers.

The few Drawers pictured and priced in this advertisement were selected at random from our immense stock. Countless other styles await you at prices which represent barely the cost of materials. Extraordinary values at 25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00 and up by degrees to $10.00.

6c, Child's first size Drawers; continuous bands, hem-stitched hem, cluster of tucks.

Paris Hand-Made Lingerie.

This very chaste and refined Underwear is eagerly sought for by ladies of culture. Our trade has so grown in real French Underwear that we are now enabled to import direct large quantities, with the result that we show an assortment greater than is carried by any other two Louisville stores combined, and on account of the saving we make by importing it ourselves, we can offer these elegant garments at prices no higher than is usually charged for domestic goods.

$1.19—Hand-embroidered French Chemise.

$1.45—Three styles needle-work Chemise.

FRENCH GOWNS—$2.45, $3.45 upwards.

FRENCH DRAWERS—$1.39, $2.45 upwards.

FRENCH SKIRTS—$2.55, $3.95 upwards.

FRENCH COVERS—$2.95 and up.

Gowns.

Besides those pictured here you will find an array of staple and novelty Gowns that is irresistible.

50c—Three styles of Gowns; worth 75c.
55c—Two good numbers; worth 90c.
75c—Eight choice styles; worth $1.00 and $1.25.
90c—Ten styles of Gowns; worth $1.35.

From this price up to $25.00 we offer a collection of exquisite Sleeping Robes that has never been equaled in this community. In every instance the present prices are away under actual value.

33c This Gown.

Skirts.

We have never been able to offer so many beautiful Skirts at such small figures. The ones pictured in this ad. hardly give an adequate idea of what you may expect in this line.

At 55c, 75c, $1.00 and up to $50.00 we have a most extraordinary variety, all under priced for this sale. Buy your summer supply now.

Odds and Ends.

One of the most attractive features of this annual sale has been the great tables of Odds and Ends. These lots are made up from all garments that are slightly mused from handling, or that were used for show pieces.

In addition to these we take from our regular stock all broken lines and single garments. They are marked about half their former figure. The range covers every quality from the lowest grade to the very finest, and the present prices start at 10c.

Every garment is represented, such as corset covers, gowns, skirts, drawers and chemises.

ed. Chairman R. H. Winn, of Mt. Sterling, presided and everything was harmonious. The convention to nominate a candidate for Railroad Commissioner will be held April 24, at Mt. Sterling, and the county convention, to select delegates to the district convention, will be held April 20.

Among the candidates are J. B. McClain, of Breathitt county; W. C. Black, of Knox; S. M. Nicell, of Morgan; Homer Bryson, of Nicholas; George Armstrong, of Carter; Jake Patrick, of Magoffin; E. D. Bryson, of Kenon; Ora Lebus, of Harrison, and James Wallow and A. T. Siler, of Whitley. The latter is the incumbent and seems to have the most strength. The district

FUNERAL OF BARONESS BURDETT-COUTTS.

London, Jan. 5.—In the presence of a congregation representative of all classes, the body of Baroness Coutts was interred in Westminster Abbey to-day under the shadow of the memorial to her fellow philanthropist, and friend, the Earl of Shaftesbury. The Abbey was filled to its capacity. King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the Prince and Princess of Wales sent representatives as did the workers in the sums of London, whose societies were beneficiaries of the late baroness' charity.

The American charge d'affaires, Mr. Carter, represented the American Embassy and the Lord Mayor and Corporation attended in state. The streets along the route of the procession and in the vicinity of the Abbey were lined with spectators who included many of the poorest inhabitants of the East End.

Prof. Charles Oldrieve Walks On Water Into Louisville Harbor

Thousands Assemble On Levee To Witness Exploits of "Human Boat"—Exhibition At 1 O'clock To-day.

More than a thousand persons assembled on both sides of the Ohio river at noon yesterday to see Prof. Charles Oldrieve, the "human boat," in his exploit of walking on water.

Prof. Charles Oldrieve, who is a protégé of the late Capt. W. S. Andrews, of national fame because he crossed the Atlantic ocean in a sailing vessel fourteen feet long, had a most exciting trip. On his way down the river he was followed by his escorts twice, and one time was nearly blown overboard by a heavy wind and fog that had hindered his progress in the last few days.

Prof. Oldrieve is a native of Boston, but he has traversed the world. He is thirty-eight years old and five feet nine inches tall. He weighs 175 pounds. Since an early age he has made water locomotion his specialty. In 1897 he learned how to walk on water when he made his first trip along the Hudson river. Later he walked the Mississippi river, the Niagara river and the English channel. He was a protégé of Capt. W. S. Andrews, who crossed the Atlantic ocean in a sailing vessel fourteen feet long, but who was drowned on his last trip four years ago.

The boats in which he walks are made of cedar. They are four feet long, six inches wide and six inches deep. The feet are retained in the boots by means of a strap which is fastened to the river he never takes his feet from the water. Prof. Oldrieve said that quick results in keeping your balance and never permitting the feet to leave the water. He will give an exhibition here at noon, when he will walk from First to Fifth street on the water.

HEARING HALTED
ON HEARST'S PETITION.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Supreme Court Justice Fitts to-day, on motion of counsel representing Mayor McClellan, of New York city, refused an order forbidding Attorney General Jackson to hear the argument on a petition for leave to begin quo warranto proceedings against Mayor McClellan, pending a hearing before Justice Fitts on January 12.

This will prevent the argument before the Attorney General, which has been set for next Monday. The writ was asked for on the ground a similar application for leave to test Mayor McClellan's title to the office of Mayor of New York had been acted on by former Attorney General Mayer and that the present Attorney General had no right to open the proceedings.

THREE NEGROES LANDED SAFE IN JAIL.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 5.—A special to the News from Hattiesburg, Miss., says the three Lumberton brothers, negroes, wanted for the murder of Conductor Robert H. Harrison on the Mobile and Ohio railway, near Crawford, Miss., last week, have been arrested at Stalls, Miss. Harrison was recognized by a drummer, who assisted the local officers, Capt. A. G. Dary, in making the arrest.

They are now in jail at Winston, but will be taken to Jackson for safekeeping as the Lumberton brothers are dangerous to return to the scene of the crime. A reward of $800 is outstanding. The killing of Harrison was the beginning of the rioting at Sebeba Christmas day in which several negroes were shot to death.

TO ENJOY A GOOD DINNER.
How to Avoid Dizziness and Indigestion After Eating.

Let us tell you how you can enjoy a good dinner, so that the heartiest meal will set well on your stomach and leave no unpleasant and disagreeable after effects.

We will show you how to regulate the appetite of your children and the enjoyment of food, so that it will taste as well as when mother cooked the dinner.

There is no hard work necessary to do this; no need of a rigid and self-denying diet; no call for nasty and unpalatable medicines. Simply take a few M-ona stomach tablets before each meal and before going to bed, and it will so strengthen the stomach and give you a hearty appetite.

The strongest proof we can offer of our faith in this advice is the fact that M-ona has cured thousands of cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, and all the ailments of the stomach.

M-ona is not a mere digestive, giving only temporary relief, but a specific for all diseases of the stomach, strengthening the digestive organs and making a permanent cure.

LANCASTER CITIZENS
FORM GOOD ORDER LEAGUE.

Lancaster, Ky., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—A mass-meeting was held here in the Christian church in the interest of civil reform and good citizenship. Capt. William Herndon was chosen chairman of the meeting and the Hon. R. H. Tootle, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was invited to the chief clerk of the League of Nations.

Mr. Tootle, in his address, said that the League of Nations was a great step toward the peace of the world, and that it was the duty of every citizen to support it.

When brought to the county jail, McCall said that he did not wish to make any statement in regard to any part, except such repetition as is called for by the privilege of the press.

DELIVERY MAN CHARGED
WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

David McGill, formerly a deliveryman for a grocery store at Sixth and York streets, was arrested last night at his home, 231 Maple street, by Patrolmen Claire and Hogan on a charge of embezzlement.

McGill said he had night in speaking of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was invited to the chief clerk of the League of Nations.

Mr. Tootle, in his address, said that the League of Nations was a great step toward the peace of the world, and that it was the duty of every citizen to support it.

Lancaster, Ky., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—A mass-meeting was held here in the Christian church in the interest of civil reform and good citizenship. Capt. William Herndon was chosen chairman of the meeting and the Hon. R. H. Tootle, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was invited to the chief clerk of the League of Nations.

Mr. Tootle, in his address, said that the League of Nations was a great step toward the peace of the world, and that it was the duty of every citizen to support it.

When brought to the county jail, McCall said that he did not wish to make any statement in regard to any part, except such repetition as is called for by the privilege of the press.

DELIVERY MAN CHARGED
WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

David McGill, formerly a deliveryman for a grocery store at Sixth and York streets, was arrested last night at his home, 231 Maple street, by Patrolmen Claire and Hogan on a charge of embezzlement.

McGill said he had night in speaking of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was invited to the chief clerk of the League of Nations.

Mr. Tootle, in his address, said that the League of Nations was a great step toward the peace of the world, and that it was the duty of every citizen to support it.

A Great Feature to Appear In The Courier-Journal.

Next Sunday we will begin the publication of one of the most absorbing and enlivening series of articles ever printed by a Kentucky paper.

THIS New Department will be the work of the well-known traveler and correspondent—

FREDERIC J. HASKIN

and will deal with conditions in the United States. This able young writer will treat his subject in such a novel and striking manner that the interest of every reader will be held from the outset. This country of ours is the biggest thing the world has ever known; yet the average American has been too busy, or too indifferent, to keep himself posted on the extraordinary development that has been going on all around him. The new series will contain just the things that people want to know, namely, the big, vital facts about our country, told briefly, accurately and connectedly.

THE MAGIC OF "AMERICA"

First, our correspondent will show the magic of the name "America." Our country has attracted more immigrants than ever went anywhere else since the world began. All the other migrations of men are puny affairs in comparison with the movement to the United States. Mr. Haskin shows the full significance of this in a series of glaring comparisons which are so new and striking that they will leave an indelible impression on your mind.

Our National Wealth

The grand totals of the wealth of the United States are simply staggering when you begin to comprehend their significance. Nature has bestowed upon us such a lavish portion of natural riches that we are indeed the very prize of the earth. And we are the greatest spenders the world has ever known. Our correspondent claims that we spend more money in the evening for fun than the rest of the world lives on during the day, and he proves it in a most original and conclusive manner.

Geographical Peculiarities

This series is not all about statistics and heavy subjects. It has lots of live, gossipy bits and turns to it. One story that everybody will enjoy, especially the school children, is about the geographical peculiarities of our country. It tells about the complications that arise on account of the State line between Texas and Arkansas dividing the city of Texarkana in two parts. Do you know what city in the United States has the longest street? Do you know what State has the largest county? You will learn a lot about such oddities of geography from this article.

The Tipping Nuisance

Another subject that will command popular interest is the growth of the tipping nuisance in this country. We are rapidly borrowing this pernicious system from Europe, and goodness knows what we will eventually come to if something is not done to check the evil. Mr. Haskin shows the total that your smiling friend, the Pullman porter, rakes off, as well as the clever system of graft that the barbers and waiters of the cities have perfected. In foreign countries where tipping has been practiced the longest, labor is the most debased. In Berlin they tip the street-car conductors. Are we coming to that?

Science of Advertising

Advertising has been developed to a science in the United States. We spend more money for publicity in this country every year than it takes to run any Government in the world. Our correspondent will tell all the little ins and outs of the business in a breezy, intimate way that will be exceedingly interesting to thousands of people who have to do with advertisements, as well as hundreds of thousands who read them. Wouldn't you like to know how much the ads in your favorite magazine cost, and what returns they bring?

It is quite impossible to more than indicate the full scope and importance of this extraordinary series in a brief digest like this. In the course of time it will run through all of the more important phases of our national development—such as trade, labor, industry, education, law and order, foreign relations, etc., etc. Interspersed between the serious subjects will be plenty of light reading and color. There will be enough variety for all tastes, and the whole is intended to be educational. The aim is to give accurate information about things that have to do with our great country, and which in one way or another affect our daily lives. Won't that be worth while?

A DAILY SERVICE

To publish a series about such an enormous subject in weekly installments would stretch it over too much time, so the new feature will be run in daily chapters—just long enough for the convenience of the busy reader. Another reason for running it daily is the desire to have more people take the Courier-Journal during the week. There is too great a difference between our Sunday and week-day circulation. We want your subscription for seven days instead of one. Why not? The Courier-Journal is a great newspaper, containing all foreign, national, State and city news. You ought to read it every day. Encourage your children to form the habit of keeping up with current events. It will help their education. The only two reasons we can think of why you might not want to become a seven-day subscriber are the cost and the lack of time to read. The first excuse is not tenable, because the cost is practically nothing. The objection that you haven't the time to read is not a good one, either. You can surely contrive to "snatch a few minutes" some time during each twenty-four hours to find out what the world at large is doing. It will freshen your mind and quicken your interest in living. Just as an experiment, start with the beginning of the new series next Sunday, January 13. You can at least afford to give it a trial. Write to The Courier-Journal, or place your order with the local agent.

LAYMEN ROUSED.

Significant Fact In Church World of 1906.

TREND TOWARD UNION OR FEDERATION MORE GENERAL.

ORTHODOXY INCREASES AT EXPENSE OF HIGHER CRITICISM.

EVANGELISTIC MOVEMENT.

At the beginning of the New Year churchmen of all religious bodies are looking forward in the consideration of large plans which are to influence the churches during the twelvemonth, and also studying the religious movements of the year just closed, to find wherein influences are to continue and what new movements are calling for support. Nineteen hundred and six was an eventful year for the churches along several lines. Notably these were the awakening of the laymen of the churches to realized responsibility and endeavor, the impetus which church union and federation movements received, the arousing of a new interest in missions, home and foreign, and the increase in definite evangelistic effort. All these promise to be keynotes of religious advance in America during 1907, and it is especially along these lines that church leaders are working.

Leaders say that there has never been in this country as widespread and definite a movement among the laymen of the churches as at the present time. A feature of this movement is referred to as a new attitude taken by the laity toward the clergy. The laymen look to the ministers for spiritual leadership, but they are taking up for themselves the direction of secular and material phases of Christian work, including church support and the maintenance of missionary effort. This is true of practically all the men's organizations newly formed, as distinguished from older organizations like the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the Episcopal Church, the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, an interdenominational organization; the Wesley and St. Paul Brotherhoods in the Methodist Church; and others which are doing increasingly successful work along spiritual lines.

Of the new organizations the Presbyterian Brotherhood combines both the spiritual and the material in its outward work. For it is a federation of all parish men's organizations in Presbyterian churches, regardless of denomination, but has set for itself the definite task of increasing the amount of contributions for church and mission support. The Universalist Brotherhood, not unlike the Presbyterian in its plans, the new Episcopal organization, the Seabury Society, has set for itself the definite task of training laymen for Sunday-school work, to take part in church extension effort, serving as lay readers in missions until the people are able to support a settled clergyman, and holding a summer conference of church workers. These movements among laymen promise during the year to extend to denominations other than those named, for already there is talk among leaders of the Congregational, Baptist, United Brethren and other bodies looking toward men's organizations.

Tendency Toward Union.

Movements toward the union of different religious bodies, which have been stirring church circles for several years, received marked impetus in 1906 and promise still further to advance during this year. The most notable accomplishment of last year was the union of the Presbyterian and the Cumberland Presbyterian bodies, which, although accomplished last May, does not take full effect until May of this year, when delegates from both bodies meet in the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. A minority in the Cumberland Church has tried by legal methods to block the union, but this has had little success. It is not unlikely that the Reformed Presbyterian Church will also join the union, Presbyterian body, and action to that effect may be taken in 1907.

The proposed union of the Congregational, United Brethren and Methodist Protestant denominations advanced a step in the closing months of 1906, although the committee which met at Pittsburgh decided on what is a close federation rather than organic union. These three bodies are united in policy, but the difficulties in the way of union are considered far greater than those of the Presbyterian movement. The General Assembly of the National Council meets in October of this year and a further step in the union movement is then looked for.

The general conferences of the Methodist Protestants and United Brethren do not meet until 1908, when final action may be looked for. Baptists and Free Baptists are getting closer together and are expected to find some basis for union. The Southern Baptist Convention is then looking for a look to see the Disciples of Christ included in such union movement and some leaders among Disciples are working for it. Both Baptists and Disciples have found that they are hampered in the consideration of such matters because they have general meetings save missionary ones, and in both bodies there are strong movements toward the establishment of general conventions before which union and other general matters may properly be brought for action. Baptists are to try the experiment and have appointed one of the days of their missionary society anniversaries of next May for a general meeting.

Over in Canada there is a well-advanced movement towards the union of the Congregationalists, the Methodists and the Mission House in Kingston has been taken by several of the general bodies, all of it favorable to long and joint consideration of the problems involved in the movement. The last meeting having been in Toronto last month. Statements of both are now being made and the discussion has brought out differences and difficulties which it may be impossible to reconcile. Differences in the policy of the three bodies have thus far offered no insurmountable difficulties, and it is believed by leaders that even if organic union is found to be impossible at this time, the movement will result in a close federation that will be almost effective.

Federation Idea Popular.

As distinguished from movements looking to denominational unions, the federation idea is everywhere finding favor. A new federation of bodies holding the Presbyterian system of government was effected last year, in which practically all have joined except Southern Presbyterians, who see in the movement their leaders maintain, a scheme on the part of the Northern Presbyterian church to absorb all Presbyterian bodies, the Impetus For Missions.

During last year missionary matters received such impetus that leaders look for a still wider interest, especially in foreign missions, during the coming twelvemonth. The celebration of the Haystack Centennial had much to do with the aroused interest last year, but other causes were the jubilee celebration of missions in Indiana which took place in the closing days of 1906; the centennial celebration of missions in China, to be held in a few months in Shanghai; the activity of the Young People's Missionary and the Student Volunteer movements, and the summer conferences of these and other organizations. The presence in this country of Dr. S. M. Zwemer, a pioneer in missionary work in Arabia, has also roused new interest in missions to Mohammedan countries. A new and successful feature of missionary work and one that has helped greatly to increase the support by a home church of one or more missionaries on the foreign field. This adds a personal element to work this year on the extension of this plan.

Among young people's societies there have been few movements of note during the past year, nor are many changes in prospect. The Baptist Young People's Union has been put upon a better basis, and now gives promise of stability and growth. The Epworth League of the Methodists, the Luther League of the Lutheran young people and other denominational organizations of similar nature are continuing excellent work. The United Society of Christian Endeavor starts the new year with several new leaders, although they are now only in their offices, not in their identification with Christian endeavor. Mr. William Shaw, long treasurer of the organization, becomes secretary in place of Mr. Von Ogden Vogt, and Mr. Hiram N. Lathrop becomes treasurer. A new office, editorial secretary, is filled by Amos R. Wells. President F. E. Clark is to spend some of the new year extending the movement in South America.

It had been expected by some leaders that an effect of the Crapsy trial would be that others, perhaps ministers in other bodies as well as Episcopal, holding equally pronounced views, would come forward and ask to be tried by their respective ecclesiastical courts. Thus far, however, just the opposite effect has to be noted. Ministers who had previously been suspected of orthodox views are making haste to proclaim their soundness in the faith, and are committing of inquiry through the committee disapproved of the views held. It also disapproved of a trial for heresy as being a cure somewhat worse than the ailment.

Orthodox Wave Expected.

The outlook for the immediate future, especially for the year now opened, is an orthodox wave that will, and to some extent now does, extend to all bodies. There are no heresy trials in sight, and there are, it is thought, likely to be none. There are men in the ministry who sympathize with the Rev. Dr. Crapsy in his views, but they are keeping very quiet. Two strong men, both in the Episcopal Church, and among the foremost of American divines, the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington and the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, have recently preached sermons on the authority of the faith. Neither takes anything so much as approaching an unorthodox view.

Evangelistic Movements.

In almost all religious bodies evangelistic movements are in progress, and 1906, and are to be equally if not more prominent this year. Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Baptists, Methodists, Disciples and many other bodies have been conducting carefully planned campaigns in various parts of the country. The most notable of these have had success beyond the anticipations of their leaders. Some of these campaigns have been interdenominational, although denominational in their leadership. Notably has this been true of the work of the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman for the Presbyterian Evangelistic Committee. In the cities where he has worked, simultaneous campaigns have been organized in all the churches, and as Dr. Chapman himself expresses it, the work has been to make Christians rather than Presbyterians.

Another evangelistic feature has been afforded by Gipsy Smith, who came from England at the invitation of the Congregationalists to make a tour of work in New York, where the fervor of a political campaign impaired his efficiency, but in Boston and other New England centers he made a strong impression. Similar results are looked for from his work in the West, where he will spend the next several months of the year. Another Congregational figure is that of the Rev. Dr. W. J. Dawson. Dr. Dawson, formerly of the West, is continuing to make a deep impression, although he has recently been deprived of the assistance of Mr. Alexander, kept away by the illness of his wife.

The Methodist Commission on Evangelism is working among the conferences, directing, in large part, the work of the pastors along definite evangelistic lines. In much the same way the Baptist Committee, with the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woolfink as secretary, works in co-operation with State associations. This method carries the evangelistic movement into the smaller communities, and the policy is to be continued throughout this year.

In the Roman Catholic Church evangelistic effort and church extension are attracting wide attention. The Apostolic Mission House in Washington is giving priests special training for conducting missions to non-Catholics, and the various dioceses. This movement has met marked success during the past year and its scope is to be extended during 1907. Catholic Church extension work has been based upon a basis of approaching that of the Protestant home mission boards, and churches are being organized through the West and Southwest. Another organization is working to extend the Catholic Church among the negroes.

Wives, Mothers, Sisters Of Drinking Men!

Stop Pleading, Scolding and Crying! Give Orrine and Destroy the Desire for Drink.

One out of every seven drinking men swear off religiously on New Year's, but how few of the good resolutions are carried out.

It is because the continual drinking in the past has weakened the nerve cells of the human system until the craving for drink has fastened itself so strongly that temptation cannot be resisted.

Thousands of persons who really want to quit the use of whiskey and beer realize that they cannot do so without medical help, yet they cannot afford the time or perhaps the money to go to a sanatorium. Mothers, wives and sisters, you can give Orrine without the patient's knowledge. Orrine No. 1 is to be given secretly. It is perfectly tasteless, colorless and odorless. Orrine No. 2 is for those willing to take the remedy. Either form costs but $1 per box. Can be taken at home without publicity and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day for drink. Mail orders filled on receipt of price.

Write to The Orrine Co., Inc., Medical Dept. D. Washington, D. C., about your case or the one you have in mind and receive valuable advice without obligating yourself in the least. All correspondence strictly confidential. Free treatise mailed on request.

Read What T. P. Taylor & Co. Say About Orrine

We are happy to advise you that we have sold many a gross of your remedy, and a great many remarkable cures of the drinking habit have come to our notice. We have had customers tell us that after taking a few doses of ORRINE the odor and taste of liquor were very repulsive to them. We know of many cases where your valuable remedy has cured confirmed drunkards and been the means of making good citizens of hopeless cases.

THE GUARANTEE

A registered guarantee coupon in each package of Orrine entitles the purchaser to refund of money if cure is not effected.

Orrine is sold by T. P. Taylor & Co., 332 4th, 582 4th, N. E. Cor. 3d and Jefferson.

REUNION OF THE GOVER FAMILY AT CEDAR GROVE STATION

Somerset, Ky., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—A notable family reunion was held a few days ago at the home of Mr. T. M. Gover, at Cedar Grove, this county.

Mrs. Sarah Jane Gover is the widow of Wesley G. Gover, who died March 4, 1888, at the age of seventy-four years. She is now approaching her eighty-third birthday and she is in comparatively good health. She and her husband were both born in Pulaski county, having changed locations but twice, viz., when they went to housekeeping at Bronston, this county, and their removal from that place to Cedar Grove, where Mrs. Gover has resided for sixty-eight years.

Four children were born to their union, three of whom died in early infancy, and the remaining seven, five boys and two girls, grew to be strong men and women, four of whom step-son, constituted this reunion.

Her children, in order of age, are as follows: William F. Gover (step-son), aged seventy, who now resides at Somerset and is active in the farming and milling business; John L. Gover, aged sixty-seven, Somerset, is now a retired farmer, but in perfect health, weighing 200 pounds; Mrs. G. W. Jones, aged sixty-three, now residing in Somerset, the wife of a prominent stock dealer and farmer, and as active as a girl; Mrs. D. J. Saunders, aged sixty, living in Richmond, Baker county, Ore., the wife of a hauling man; and Mrs. Q. M. Gover, aged fifty-eight, living at Ethio, Ky., an up-to-date farmer and stockman, in fine health and weighing upward of 200 pounds; Wesley B. Gover, aged fifty-four, whose home is in Somerset, but who is engaged in the stove business at Hopper, Knox county, an all-around capable man, who changes the business 125 points; M. F. Gover, aged forty-nine, unmarried, a prominent stock dealer and farmer, residing at Cedar Grove, being an able and robust as the average man's weight.

The sum of the ages of the eight children is 48 years, averaging 6.25 years each, and their total weight is 1,253 pounds, or an average of 156 pounds each. Mrs. Gover is the only one of her generation of people now living, and though she is reaching the age when the average person becomes frail, she is still able to impart mincey Christian advice, and wherever she is known she is honored and revered by old and young.

Ohio River Water Power.

Every once in a while someone proposes a scheme to utilize the water power of the falls of the Ohio at this place and reflects upon the lack of enterprise which has permitted such great natural advantages to be so long neglected. Occasionally schemes for such an undertaking have been projected and companies well advanced toward the commencement of operations, when the project would be abandoned until the next speculator or enthusiast would put in an appearance. The explanation, both of the projection and subsequent abandonment of such projects is very simple. When the river is at a normal stage the force of the current and the fall of the water from the head to the foot of the rapids, a distance of somewhat over a mile, are so suggestive of power that it is very natural that one should be surprised to see such waste of propulsive force and be struck with the apparent want of enterprise which should neglect to utilize it. But a little investigation or reflection will soon convince an intelligent person that the failure to harness this force of nature for practical purposes has not been the result of want of enterprise in the Kentuckian, but of the peculiar natural conditions which render it impracticable.

If the total fall of the river from the head to the foot of the rapids, about twenty-nine feet, was concentrated in the form of a cataract there would be so difficulty in making its power available, because it would be stable and vary only in volume. But the full fall in the shape of rapids, varies with the stage of the river. At a normal stage

it is ample for propelling as much machinery as could be placed upon its banks. But power for manufacturing or for the more modern use in the generation of electricity must be constant, and the fact that this is not so is the true reason why the water of the falls

has not been utilized for the many pur-and early in the last century a large merchant flouring mill was erected at Shippingport, on the falls, now a part of Louisville. But after having been operated for some years it ceased to be profitable from the suspension of power and the overflow consequent upon the freshets. A similar condition developed upon the construction of a mill for the manufacture of binder twine at the lock on the Kentucky river, near Frankfort, about thirty years ago. The State leased the power to a local company for 100 years at a nominal sum, and a mill was erected, and during ordinary stage of water was very successful. But with recurring freshets and suspensions the company found it necessary to install steam machinery to operate the mill in these high-water periods, requiring a plant of sufficient capacity to run it continuously. A similar provision would have to be made for every mill or manufactory erected along the falls to insure continuous operation.

The Ohio river offers now a valuable object lesson to anyone who will pay a visit to it and view its smooth stream as it passes over the falls, which in ordinary stages present such picturesque rapids, with the suggestion of neglected water power. An inspection of the situation by those who merely propose to exploit some scheme for the utilization of this power will soon lead to the abandonment of such projects.

The Channel Tunnel.

There is an almost constant in England and France over the proposition to connect the two countries by a tunnel under the English Channel, in which a railway would be constructed.

It is proposed that the bore shall extend from Dover, in England, to Santo, near Calais, in France, to be thirty miles long; three miles for each approach and twenty-four miles under the water. The cost is estimated at $90,- 000,000. Like most estimates made in advance, it is probably too low, but the chief controversy is not over the cost, which is proposed to be equally divided between England and France. It is figured that 1,800,000 passengers would pass through the tunnel annually, and that is more than 9 per cent on the investment. Of course, any excess of cost would reduce the returns to capital, but even should it pay half the estimate, it would doubtless be successful if it were a mere question of raising the money. There is, however, the preliminary question of getting the consent of the two nations.

It is well known that France is a great military nation, while Great Britain ranks as the greatest of naval powers. France also has a large navy, but it is so far inferior to that of Great Britain that no comparison is necessary. Great Britain, however, has a comparatively small army, and only a small part of it is available under ordinary conditions for home defense.

It is admitted that if the French army could be landed on the shores of England nothing could prevent it from going to London and taking possession of the capital. But the theory is that the British navy is so powerful that no foreign army could be dangerous. The transports and the war vessels sent with them would be sunk on the way by the powerful British navy. For many years the navy has been considered as the safeguard of England, and while there have been projects for strengthening the home defenses also, the chief reliance continues to be placed in the warships, and their number has been increased from time to time by liberal provisions in the budgets.

Such being the condition of the two peoples, it is not surprising that the new project should find its warmest opposition in England. Many of the people there think that the connection of the two countries by railway would be a French invasion. To this it is answered that it would not be difficult to make arrangements for blowing up or drowning an invading army.

On the occurrence of war the tunnel could at once be put out of business, or means taken to destroy the invasaders as soon as they emerged. But the people of England, secure, as they think, in their isolation, are reluctant to take chances of that kind. These schemes for defense against an invasion by the tunnel might miscarry, and then everything would be lost. After having spent fabulous sums in creating the greatest navy on earth, they look with much suspicion upon a scheme which might in effect put it out of business so far as guarding the country is concerned. With railroad communication with France, the country would cease to be insular in many respects,

and would have to adopt new methods of the value of which the people are doubtful.

There may be some hesitation, and doubtless there is, to putting opposition upon the sole ground of fear of European armies. At any rate, other objections are made to the tunnel project. A Cabinet member is quoted as saying that he fears that the national character would be gravely altered by more frequent commucation with the continent, which seems rather absurd in view of the large travel that has always existed and the cosmopolitan character of the population of London. It is urged by others that the railroad would bring foreign ideas as well as foreign passengers, though the road for such ideas has long been open and much frequented.

Business men also say that the tunnel and railway would ruin the trade of the owners of ships that ply between the coasts. There is, of course, something in this, but it is answered

by the familiar illustration of the effects of railroads upon ox-carts and other slow modes of conveyance. It is hardly to be pretended that the progress of the country and the convenience of the masses must be absolutely subordinate to the interests of a slower mode of conveyance. There would, however, still be a demand for ships, and it is not reasonable to expect that their business would be much curtailed.

The British War Office opposed the project because it would be impossible to be sure of the destruction of the tunnel in case of war, and this is undoubtedly the chief consideration.

Before the tunnel could be completed it would be possible to put Great Britain in a better state of defense by largely augmenting the military power of the country. But there comes in another powerful ground of objection. The subject of increasing the army has already been considered, and with it the question of conscription. There is no doubt that many military men are in favor of it, but they are afraid to say so because the feeling against it in the country is so strong. France has the conscription system already, and so has no fears on that score, while in England the feeling against it is intense. The newspapers opposed to the tunnel project are telling their readers that its acceptance would inevitably lead to a general conscription, and there is no doubt that it would furnish a powerful argument in favor of that policy. So the prospects of the tunnel railway are not at present very bright. The proponents, however, are not discouraged and say that it is bound to come, because it is the logic of human evolution, but they admit that it may have to wait for a new generation of Englishmen.

MAJ. DAVIDSON IN NEW FIELD

Retires From Insurance Business After Success.

Becomes Manager of Large Coal-Mining Interests.

Plant At Nebo To Cost $350,000 When Completed.

ORGANIZE ANOTHER COMPANY.

In the voluntary retirement of Maj. John C. Davidson as general manager for Kentucky for the Aetna Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., the insurance business, not only of Kentucky, but of the entire Middle West, loses one of its best-equipped representatives and ablest advocates. At the same time, Kentucky's commercial and industrial interests have gained an exponent whose unbounded energy and business acumen will lend great impetus and force to their further development and expansion, which are now little less than marvelous. The executive ability displayed by Maj. Davidson as the manager of a great insurance business will certainly be felt in Kentucky's business avenues.

Maj. Davidson was manager for the Aetna Life Insurance Company in Kentucky for twelve years, during which period the growth of the company's business was substantial and highly satisfactory to the company. The fact that he was an educator of wide reputation, a Doctor of Philosophy, a professor of mathematics, and at the head of a well-known university school before he embarked in the insurance business, had much to do with his success as manager of a great agency. He gave an educational tinge to the work, thereby putting the selling of insurance on a higher plane, which especially appealed to the learned and better element of insurance patrons.

Shaped Legislation.

The worth of Maj. Davidson to the Aetna Life Insurance Company was recognized by the company to the extent of unbounded confidence, in that the company requested him to name his successor as manager for the State. Maj. Davidson recommended Loren B. Williamson, an able insurance man, and formerly general manager for the Home Life for Kentucky and Southern Indiana, who was promptly given the general management of the company's business. It was not so much as manager of any one particular company that the achievement of Maj. Davidson in the business was attained, but what he did was invaluable for all life insurance companies in the shaping of needed legislation.

For several terms of the Kentucky Legislature Maj. Davidson had in a great degree the supervision and the shaping of certain legislation, which in the beginning had a tendency to injure the business of the companies and place untold burdens on them. Maj. Davidson appeared before the legislative committee when bills were drawn affecting the insurance companies, and by his frankness and thorough knowledge of the business gained the confidence of the legislators. His advocacy of regulations fair to both the insurer and insured resulted in the best of measures enacted in the Kentucky Legislature in behalf of life insurance companies. His contributions to insurance journals on technical features of insurance are among the best extant.

Organized General Agents' Association.

Recognizing the advantages of harmony and united effort among life insurance men, he organized the General Agents' Association of Kentucky, and as a result of his energy in this direction he was elected its first president. This General Agents' Association is now the most powerful factor in life insurance in the State, and with the co-operation of the thousands of policyholders connected with such agency is able to prevent the passage of laws placing heavy taxes on life insurance. But during his insurance career Maj. Davidson has not been blind to the possibilities of Kentucky and from time to time has made some highly successful investments. His private business became of such importance to him he thought it time that he should devote all of his energies to it. He had been contemplating leaving the insurance business for several years, but when the Nebo Consolidated Coal and Coking Company was organized last June and Maj. Davidson was offered the presidency and general management of the company, he determined to quit the insurance business at once. Six months ago he tendered his resignation to the Aetna Life Insurance Company, but at the earnest solicitation of the company he consented to remain in charge of their affairs until January 1.

During his connection with the insurance business his principal object had been to place the business on a plane of the highest honesty and at all times to keep the policyholders in touch with the inside workings of insurance companies. No one else would be permitted to make over-estimates or exaggerate in the least the accumulations of a policy. As a consequence he is now receiving the commendations of all agents and policyholders who came under his administration.

A Great Enterprise.

In the birth of the Nebo Consolidated Coal and Coking Company Kentucky was given the largest mining plant, operating only one mine, ever built in the State, and it will be a powerful factor in assisting in developing the coal interests of the State.

This plant is located near Nebo, in Hopkins county, in the richest coal field in the Middle West; this territory having, as a rule, two uniform, parallel, workable veins averaging from five to six feet in thickness, and so near the surface that many mines do not have to sink a shaft at all, but operate slope and drift mines. The property of the Nebo Consolidated has not only the two veins mentioned above, but two other veins in addition to these and parallel to them. It is said by coal experts that this particular coal area of four parallel veins, all of which are within 200 feet of the surface, cannot be duplicated in Western Kentucky, and probably in no other coal field in the United States. The top vein, which is called the "Coal Vein" and known geologically as No. 15, is seven feet thick, and outcrops at the surface.

Before making its purchase the company, by a careful series of diamond core drillings, defined the limits of this fine vein and bought the entire area of about 4,000 acres. This, with their other holdings of Nos. 9, 10 and 11 veins, makes them by actual survey 100,000,000 tons of excellent steam and domestic coal.

It seems, moreover, that nature especially designed this property for being operated with safety and economy. Instead of having several mines located at considerable intervals apart, concluded that it was best for efficiency and economy to concentrate the entire output on one point and have but one plant.

This plant has been under construction since the first of last August, and will be completed by March 15. It will operate the top vein through one opening, and the lower veins through another, at opposite ends of the same tipple.

The equipment, machinery, etc., will be the most modern in the South. The coal will be brought from the mine by automatic steel conveyors, handling 200 tons per hour, and loaded on an elevated tipple, with automatic separators, where the coal is separated into lump, cut, pea and slack, and then loaded on cars standing on the tracks below. No nine cars ever come to the surface, and they are hauled underground by electric locomotives and dumped at a big hopper which feeds the conveyor. Electric mining machines will be used for cutting the coal, and as far as possible electrical machinery will be used for work of every kind about the plant. Expert Dr. Davies, the well-known coal expert, is in charge of the engineering.

Plant Cost $225,000.

The plant at Nebo is being equipped at the enormous cost of $225,000, and it is estimated that before another year has around additions and improvements to the plant will bring the sum to $350,000. The plant is located on the Providence branch of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, running out from Madisonville. This branch when connecting lines are completed will be the main line of the Louisville and Nashville from Louisville to Paducah, Ky. This will give the Nebo Consolidated Coal and Coking Company an outlet north, south, east and west.

The officers of the Nebo Consolidated Coal and Coking Company are as follows: President, John C. Davidson; first vice president, Henry Kaufman; secretary, Frank Fehr; treasurer, Albert Latta.

Mostly Louisville Capital.

The most of the capital invested in the business of the Nebo Consolidated Coal and Coking Company is from Louisville. The organization of the company was due entirely to Maj. Davidson, who first took a survey of the field and became convinced that it was the best outlook for coal in Kentucky. He was able to secure the cooperation of the thousands of policyholders connected with such agency is able to prevent the passage of laws placing heavy taxes on life insurance. But during his insurance career Maj. Davidson has not been blind to the possibilities of Kentucky and from time to time has made some highly successful investments. His private business became of such importance to him he thought it time that he should devote all of his energies to it. He had been contemplating leaving the insurance business for several years, but when the Nebo Consolidated Coal and Coking Company was organized last June and Maj. Davidson was offered the presidency and general management of the company, he determined to quit the insurance business at once. COUNTIES

To Be Organized For the "Jamestown Fund."

CHAIRMAN NAMED BY PRESIDENT OF COMMISSION.

EACH SECTION ASKED FOR A SPECIFIED SUM.

MASS-MEETINGS ARRANGED.

Committees in every county in the State are expected to assist during the week commencing January 21, in the raising of funds and the creation of general interest on the behalf of the movement for a Kentucky Exposition at the Jamestown Exposition. A single exception has been made in the case of Johnson county, where the emergency campaign planned for that week will probably be conducted along other lines. The week commencing January 21 has been designated as "Kentucky-Jamestown Week" and in six days the Kentucky-Jamestown Exposition Commission hopes to round out its fund of $40,000 required for the erection of a State building and the making of an elaborate exhibit of the State's products and resources.

During the past few days county chairmen have been appointed by Col. J. Stoddard Johnston and John B. Atkinson, president and vice president, respectively, of the Kentucky Exposition Commission. Mr. Atkinson, who resides at Earlington, is also Director of Finance for the Commission. Men of prominence in each county have been selected to act as chairmen for their respective districts. They have been requested to appoint committees of five or more members. One of the unique features will be the appointment of women on the different committees. It is pointed out by the officers of the Commission that this movement is backed by sentiment as well as commercialism, and Kentucky, being the first daughter of Virginia, cannot afford to go unrepresented at the Exposition.

From a commercial standpoint, the movement is looked upon as one of the most important ever undertaken in the interest of State development. The Jamestown Exposition will attract millions of visitors from the Eastern section of the country, as well as many foreign visitors and it is important that the wonderful resources of the State be attractively exploited before such an audience. President Johnston, in addressing the directors in the largest counties, has indicated that every section has numerous advantages which will bear investigation by outsiders intent on making investments in this State.

Assessment of Counties.

Another unique feature of the plan to have each county participate, is the scheme of voluntary assessment suggested. Every county is asked to contribute to the fund a sum amounting to 1 per cent. of the revenue turned into the State Treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906. By this means it is suggested that equitable distribution can be made of the fund requested from the entire State. In the year the 113 counties of Kentucky turned into the State Treasury $4,081,812.90. One per cent. of this amount would be $40,818.12. Jefferson county naturally will be called upon to make the largest sum, this county, including Louisville, being asked for $11,291. Menifee county turned into the State Treasury during that fiscal year $3,635 and is therefore asked to raise only $36.35 of this fund.

In all communications sent out by President Johnston, attention was drawn to the short space of time allowed the commission for its work. The Exposition will open on April 28, only ninety-five days from the beginning of "Kentucky-Jamestown Week." It is necessary for the commission to have its fund well in hand in order that it may proceed with the erection of the State building and the making of the Kentucky building and the collection and installation of the State's exhibit.

As has already been announced, a number of mass-meetings will be held in the principal towns and cities of the State during "Kentucky-Jamestown Week." In most cases these will be held under the auspices of the commercial organizations of the respective cities. Preliminary arrangements have already been completed for the meetings in Henderson and Frankfort. The meeting in Henderson will take place on Saturday, January 26, and will be held under the auspices of the Henderson Commercial Club, of which J. L. Nicholson is president. C. O. Rutach, secretary of the club, has advised the Kentucky Commission, promising the active co-operation of his organization in this movement.

Interest in Frankfort.

A single exception has been made in the case of Johnson county, where the emergency campaign planned for that week will probably be conducted along other lines. The week commencing January 21 has been designated as "Kentucky-Jamestown Week" and in six days the Kentucky-Jamestown Exposition Commission hopes to round out its fund of $40,000 required for the erection of a State building and the making of an elaborate exhibit of the State's products and resources.

During the past few days county chairmen have been appointed by Col. J. Stoddard Johnston and John B. Atkinson, president and vice president, respectively, of the Kentucky Exposition Commission. Mr. Atkinson, who resides at Earlington, is also Director of Finance for the Commission. Men of prominence in each county have been selected to act as chairmen for their respective districts. They have been requested to appoint committees of five or more members. One of the unique features will be the appointment of women on the different committees. It is pointed out by the officers of the Commission that this movement is backed by sentiment as well as commercialism, and Kentucky, being the first daughter of Virginia, cannot afford to go unrepresented at the Exposition.

From a commercial standpoint, the movement is looked upon as one of the most important ever undertaken in the interest of State development. The Jamestown Exposition will attract millions of visitors from the Eastern section of the country, as well as many foreign visitors and it is important that the wonderful resources of the State be attractively exploited before such an audience. President Johnston, in addressing the directors in the largest counties, has indicated that every section has numerous advantages which will bear investigation by outsiders intent on making investments in this State.

Assessment of Counties.

Another unique feature of the plan to have each county participate, is the scheme of voluntary assessment suggested. Every county is asked to contribute to the fund a sum amounting to 1 per cent. of the revenue turned into the State Treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906. By this means it is suggested that equitable distribution can be made of the fund requested from the entire State. In the year the 113 counties of Kentucky turned into the State Treasury $4,081,812.90. One per cent. of this amount would be $40,818.12. Jefferson county naturally will be called upon to make the largest sum, this county, including Louisville, being asked for $11,291. Menifee county turned into the State Treasury during that fiscal year $3,635 and is therefore asked to raise only $36.35 of this fund.

In all communications sent out by President Johnston, attention was drawn to the short space of time allowed the commission for its work. The Exposition will open on April 28, only ninety-five days from the beginning of "Kentucky-Jamestown Week." It is necessary for the commission to have its fund well in hand in order that it may proceed with the erection of the State building and the making of the Kentucky building and the collection and installation of the State's exhibit.

As has already been announced, a number of mass-meetings will be held in the principal towns and cities of the State during "Kentucky-Jamestown Week." In most cases these will be held under the auspices of the commercial organizations of the respective cities. Preliminary arrangements have already been completed for the meetings in Henderson and Frankfort. The meeting in Henderson will take place on Saturday, January 26, and will be held under the auspices of the Henderson Commercial Club, of which J. L. Nicholson is president. C. O. Rutach, secretary of the club, has advised the Kentucky Commission, promising the active co-operation of his organization in this movement.

Interest in Frankfort.

MASS-MEETINGS ARRANGED.

Committees in every county in the State are expected to assist during the week commencing January 21, in the raising of funds and the creation of general interest on the behalf of the movement for a Kentucky Exposition at the Jamestown Exposition. The week commencing January 21 has been designated as "Kentucky-Jamestown Week" and in six days the Kentucky-Jamestown Exposition Commission hopes to round out its fund of $40,000 required for the erection of a State building and the making of an elaborate exhibit of the State's products and resources.

CARL SCHURZ'S FIRST MEETING WITH LINCOLN.

[From "Reminiscences of a Long Life," by Carl Schurz, January 1894.]
I must confess that I was somewhat startled by his appearance. There he stood, overtopping by several inches all those surrounding him. Although measuring something over six feet myself, I had, when standing quite near to him, to throw my head backward in order to look into his eyes. That worthy face, with its strong features, its deep furrows and its benign, melancholy eyes, is now familiar to every American. It may be said that the whole civilized world knows and loves it. At that time it was clean-shaven and looked even more haggard and careworn than later, when it was framed in whiskers. One of his hands was a somewhat battered "steeple" hat. His neck emerged, long and sinewy, from a white collar turned down over a thin black necktie. His lank, ungainly body was clad in a rusty black frock coat with sleeves that should have been longer; but his arms appeared so long that the sleeves of a "steeple" coat could hardly have been expected to cover them all the way down to the wrists. His black trousers, too, permitted a very full view of his legs. On his left arm he carried a grey woolen shawl, which evidently served him for an overcoat in chilly weather. His left hand held a cotton umbrella of the hugging kind, and also a black satchel that bore the marks of long and hard use. His right he had kept free for hand-shaking, of which there was no end until everybody in the car seemed to be satisfied. I had seen, in Washington and in the West, several public men of rough appearance, but none whose looks seemed quite so unpolished, not to say grotesque, as Lincoln's.

RUSSIA'S GIRL REVOLUTIONISTS.

[London Chronicle.]
Since my return to Russia I have in different cities met three of the girl students who have chosen propaganda among soldiers as their special place of work. One was a Jewess, with the masses of black hair and overflowing vitality of a fair-haired Russian girl. The other two were fair-haired Russian girls, delicate and very quiet. Under all manner of disguises they obtain access to the barracks or the tea houses where soldiers resort. They go as sweethearts from the town or as ignorant peasant girls who have just come to the city to see a brother or they carry little baskets of provisions to cheer up a cousin's absence from his dear old village home. Their object is to proclaim the revolution, and, above all, to induce the men to join the great Soldiers' Union, which binds itself by an oath never to fire upon fellow-citizens. So they pass in and out among the troops week after week, carrying their life in one hand and their reputation in the other, and both hands open, at all assured me that from the soldiers themselves they had never received the smallest insult or annoyance, beyond the customary compliments and offers of marriage. No soldier had ever betrayed their secret, and in moments of danger a warning passes quickly through the barracks and they are assisted to escape.

LONG
COAT

THE long coat of our grandmothers, with some suggestions, in fact, of styles adopted by our great-grandmothers, is in the very foreground of winter fashions. Whether you select your coat for rough morning wear, afternoon calling, or evening social events, it is long, rather straight of line and possesses of an air of comfort and ease that we have not seen in coats and cloaks for many a season. As the winter advances, drooping lines become more and more in evidence, and the Chinese sleeve, particularly on evening wraps, gives a dolman-look to outer garments.

This is peculiarly the month of bargain sales in both coats and materials, but it will pay the home-dressmaker to select inconspicuous fabrics and modes, which will carry over for another season. As one good manager in a household of daughters remarked: "There is great comfort and economy for a mother in the long, loose coat. It can always be made over in half a dozen ways another season. But the short coat cannot be let down or transformed in any way into the long wrap."

Therefore, let us hail the advent of the long coat as a household economy, to say nothing of affording midwinter comfort.

For hard wear, tweeds rough worsteds, chinchilla, beaver and heavy English cravenette or rain-proof cloths, in indefinable mixtures, small broken checks, invisible plaids in various shades of one color, such as many grays, various browns and four or five dull greens, harmoniously woven.

For afternoon, to be worn over matching skirt and blouse, or princess frock, broadcloth and other smooth-finished cloth, velvet, velour and even corduroy, plush, heavy silks and broad-fon and panne velvet, lace and silk. For the tall woman, yoke and empire effects. For the short woman, long, straight lines in dressy coats, long, fitted lines for tailored coats. Many Chinese sleeves and also the Grecian or classic draperies are noted in evening wraps, while for the tall woman, yokes of plush and velvet are noted on broadcloth coats. For the short woman, a long, narrow vest of the plush velvet or even fur is employed with the long coat. Some few capes are shown, but generally these appear on traveling cloths. The box coat without a collar, but with full length sleeves and cut rather large in the arm pits, in length reaching below the knees, is preferred by many women who can afford but one separate coat. Set off by fur it is a useful, dependable garment and is more apt to carry over to another season than the more conspicuous modes.

Velvet, outlined by soutache or novelty braids, is used for collars, lapels, pocket flaps, vests and cuffs, in combination with both smooth and rough cloth. Lace is combined with chiffon, broadcloth and velvet, and fur is much used on all cloths and velvets. Buttons are very large and handsome. Vests braided or embroidered to match revers, collars and cuffs are shown on the tight-fitting coats.

Very few short separate coats are seen. The snug-fitting, many-samed coat of tan-colored cloth has given place to enormous, all-enveloping wraps which reach within a hand's breadth of the floor. The full length redingote, handsomely tailored, is preferred.

For evening, chiffon broadcloth, chiffon and panne velvet, lace and silk.

For the tall woman, yoke and empire effects.

ferred by the tall woman with good figure and carriage. No outer garment shows off more eloquently good lines and good carriage. The smartly-dressed young woman selects a semi-fitting coat in three-quarter length, with large armholes, a high military collar and touches of military braid, frogs, etc. The matron chooses a dolman effect, with big flowing sleeves.

Nearly all the long coats show sleeves long in proportion. The snug-fitting redingote has a tailored sleeve, finished like a man's overcoat. So have many of the box coats. A stunning model in broadcloth shows a tight-fitting back with the skirt of the coat plaited in at the waist line, the fronts loose and straight, the sleeves like dolman capes. Another broadcloth, trimmed with velvet, has a sleeve patterned very full into the arm hole and snug at the wrist, with a turn-back cuff of velvet, encrusted with braid.

Other shows the sleeve plaited at the shoulder and again into the turn-back cuff. A pretty coat sleeve in mixed goods has the outside seam outlined by a strap of the goods piped with velvet.

A stunning broadcloth coat, suited to almost any figure, reaches to within eight inches of the ground. It is tight-fitting in the back, the skirts in the back being laid in finely stitched plaits fastened down with buttons below the waist line. The front is semi-fitting and single-breasted, the skirt of the coat laid in inverted plaits, one on each side, which runs up in a dart to the bust line, this dart being outlined by fine braid. Double lapels and cuffs

An excellent coat for general use is double-breasted and semi-fitting, with turn-back cuffs, but no collar. The neck is finished with broad soutache braid, and the latter, an inch and a half wide, runs down from the shoulder like a strap, midway between collar edge and sleeve, and is finished with a crocheted ornament and fringe. Handsome matching buttons complete a coat which is not too conspicuous to be worn with a simple street gown and which will not be cast in the shade by an afternoon or reception frock.

A broadcloth or velvet coat which could be worn with both afternoon and evening gowns is fifty inches in length, with two plaits stitched to bust depth and then released. This gives the wide arm eye effect so popular this winter, as the plaits are close to the sleeve. Over this is stitched a deep yoke in stole shape, with four square ends in the front, a double end and two side pieces in the back, finished with fine silk fringe. A simulated turn-over collar of velvet and braid finishes off the neck. This could be made in dark or light broadcloth, and its simplicity appeals to the home dressmaker. The sleeves have stole caps to match the yoke, giving a drooping shoulder line.

A striking velvet coat has a long, narrow vest of broadcloth braided, and still another long, tight-fitting coat has a Louis vest of matching astrakhan cloth. This is obtainable in grays, blues, browns and reds, as well as black and white.

Warning.

If you can have but one heavy outer garment, which must do service both morning and afternoon, do not choose an empire design. These are singularly dressy and out of place with a tailored skirt. The empire coat demands a trained skirt.

If you can have but one afternoon and evening coat combined, use black, white, tan or gray, never one of the more striking colors, such as red, blue or pink.

The Making of a Successful Wife.

IV.—SPENDING AND SAVING.

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL: I don't know how big a wad Bill puts into his pocket when the ghost walks on Saturday afternoon, but I'm pretty sure that sweet William is no $10,000 beauty, at least not to anybody but you. His employers may pay him a pretty good salary, but I'll bet a whole string of Missouri mules that he earns every cent of it, and the future happiness of both of you depends to a great extent on how you spend it. I am led to this reflection by the faint odor of burning currency which clings to your last letter, and which leads me to believe that William's expenditures are running a pretty close race with the pay wagon. I may be wrong about this, but I've been loaded up with a few brief remarks for some time, and I'll feel better if I can deliver them where I think they'll do the most good. Maybe I'm wrong in my surmises, but if I am you won't take it amiss. You know your nomadic old dad has but one object in view, and that is to make you happy, to show you the way as well as he can to the permanent happiness that comes with a life well lived.

Now, as old Parson Smart used to say, after he had led his bewildered flock so far from the text they couldn't remember whether it was from the Songs of Solomon or the Epistle to the Thessalonians; now we will return to our "mittens." And our "mittens," that is, yours and Bill's, is in the little yellow envelope that the cashier hands out through the grating window every Saturday. That little envelope is the basis of all that is material and much that isn't material in our lives, and should therefore be treated with profound respect. It is of the utmost importance to all of us that it comes to us with regularity, but what we do with it after we get it is a blamed sight more important still. Most people seem to think that it all depends on the number of dollars it contains. That, I admit, is a highly interesting subject, but it doesn't count for much alongside the problem of placing the dollars.

Whether it's ten a week or a hundred a week, it takes stretching to carry it over seven days and leave a margin to button up on Monday. Maybe you've heard the politicians and other financial experts talking about "elastic currency." Bill has, I'm sure. Well, they don't mean exactly the same thing as I do by it, but it's mighty essential that the cashier puts elastic currency into the yellow envelope, and it's a lot more essential that you know how to stretch all the little kinks and curlicues out of it. That's the kind of a pull every man ought to have, and if his wife catches hold with both hands and pulls as hard or harder than he does they can draw it to the middle of next week without getting cramps in their muscles. It's wonderful what a woman can do in that way when she wants to, and it's also surprising what a weak back the average man gets when he tries the job by himself.

No, my little girl, this matter of stretching salaries or of making both ends lap over is team work. Most women seem to think that they've done their whole duty by their husband's salary when they've helped him to blow it in. I'm a whole lot afraid you've got some such notion in your own dear little noggin. But it's a mistake, a bad mistake. The good Lord didn't put men on earth for the sole purpose of providing pretty clothes and ice cream sodas for the other sex. That's a prevalent idea, I'll admit, and that's about all a good many men really do, but I'm willing to make my judgment that it's wrong. The main business of life is home building. The Governments of the earth, the great financial corporations, the discoveries of science, even the women's clubs are of secondary importance. And in the work of home building the man and the woman should stand side by side, shoulder to shoulder. Do you remember, little girl, that place of poetry you recited the day you graduated from High School? Cracky, but you did look fine in your pretty white dress with the blue ribbon around your waist! I didn't catch much of what you were saying, I was so busy thinking how proud I was of you, but a few lines stuck in my craw that went something like this:

As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is woman.
Dumpty, dumpty, dumpty, dumpty,
Unless each without the other.

There's something missing right in the middle of it, but the point's there, and it's just the point I want you to see. "Unless each without the other." That's it exactly. The man who wrote it, whoever he was, probably wasn't thinking about yellow envelopes, but it fits every phase of married life. You don't often get so much practical common sense out of poetry. "Unless each without the other." La me, Bill can't do all the home building by himself. You've got to pitch in and help him, and the place to begin is right at the cashier's window on Saturday afternoon.

Of course, you don't have the pleasure of the cashier's acquaintance. He's a mighty fine fellow, is the cashier, but you've got no business at his window. That's Bill's place. But it's a good deal important that Bill doesn't lose what the cashier gives him before he gets home. Lots of men don't go home all Saturday night. Of course, that relieves the woman of some responsibility in the matter I'm talking about, but it also removes the necessity for ice in the family refrigerator, and it puts a bend in a woman's back and a dent in a woman's heart that shouldn't be there. I just mentioned this incidentally. I have no doubt about your William getting home at a proper hour Saturday night and being reasonably sprightly. What I mean, sweetheart, is that the effect of your gentle influence should be felt by him from the moment he draws his pay that he should be so impressed with the principle of partnership, of equal rights in the money of the family, that he is thinking of you when he opens the yellow envelope, thinking of you when he

How to Have Beautiful Hair

Lesson No. 2.—Shampooing.

IN the first lesson we discussed the various shampoo mixtures. Having decided which mixtures will secure best results, according to the oil or lack of oil in your hair, prepare for the shampooing process by gathering up the following articles: A number of soft towels which you should warm to hasten the process of drying; a scalp brush, which is not unlike an old-fashioned nail brush, but a trifle larger; a rubber tube with a spray nozzle if you have running water, or a mug for dashing the water over the hair if you have no running water; a liberal quantity of both hot and cold water at hand.

Always choose a dry, sunny day for shampooing, as the hair will then dry more quickly and you will avoid colds. If possible dry the hair where the sunlight will strike it.

First take every snarl out of the hair and part it in the middle. The shampoo mixture may be applied in one of two ways. If it is a cream or pomade, you can dip the balls of the fingers in it and apply it thus to the scalp. If it is a liquid shampoo, fill a small bowl with part of it and apply with the brush. In either case, start with the middle part and then work from the center of the head outward, on either side, parting the hair in strands every half inch. In using the brush, raise the arm well over the head, with the handle of the brush turned up. Then the water will run down your arm.

When the entire scalp has been scrubbed, twist the hair in a loose knot on the top of the head and holding it there with the left hand scrub all around the edge of the scalp, above the forehead, over the ears and at the neck with the brush.

Now the dandruff and dust on the scalp have been loosened and you are ready for the washing proper. Pour what is left of the shampoo mixture into the wash basin with enough warm water to soak into the hair thoroughly. If you have used a pomade or jelly, you will need just warm soapsuds, made with a pure white soap. Wet the hair thoroughly and with the balls of the fingers rub the scalp and hair as if the latter were a piece of cloth.

Next comes the most important step in the entire proceeding, rinsing.

If you have at your command a bathtub in which both hot and cold water run through a common faucet, the solution is simple. A rubber tube with spray nozzle, which costs seventy-five cents and which can be bought more cheaply at sales, should be attached to the faucet, and the scalp and hair be thoroughly sprayed with water of the same temperature or a little higher than the shampoo. If this hot rinse is not used, the hair will be gummy. After the first rinsing, gradually reduce the temperature until the rinse water is as cold as you can possibly bear it; this is a preventive of cold. Do not cease rinsing until the water which runs off the hair is perfectly clear.

If you have no running water at hand, you must use one of two methods, either dash the water over the hair with a mug, or fill one of the bulbs of rubber with a spray top, such as is used for watering plants. The latter drives the rinsing water into the scalp and is more effective than the mug.

Now for the last step, drying. Wring out the hair as dry as possible without dragging on the roots. Shake it out thoroughly. Then twisting the hair lightly on top of the head, wrap it in a warm, soft towel. The moment a towel becomes wet, change it for a dry one. You waste time using a damp towel and run chance of taking cold if you let it rest on your neck and shoulders. Sit near a fire or at a sunny window and alternately fan and rub the hair. Then when it is nearly dry, with exquisite care, take out every snarl with a comb. It is at this juncture that much harm is done to the hair. Your arms are apt to be tired and you hurry the process tearing at the hair. Start at the ends of the hair and work up, and if an obstinate snarl baffles the comb, take time to pick it apart with the finger tips. KATHERINE MORTON.

Dainty Trifles For Evening Wear.

THE girl of slender means who makes the rounds of the shops is apt to feel that this is a hopeless season for her in the matter of little accessories of dress. There are a general glitter and shimmer about evening fabrics and the little trifles which complete the evening gown and the happiness of its wearer that both dazzle and depress even the deft needleworker.

On the other hand, there are many things which the resourceful girl can make for herself or dig up from the family chest of heirlooms. Among the newest and most fetching of these is a novel evening hood or scarf altogether charming for wear with the light broadcloth capes so popular this winter.

This scarf is made of a heavy figured net cut in the shape of a Red Riding Hood cape, with a cape attached which reaches over the shoulders and half way to the waist line. A narrow frilling of the net finishes the edge of the cap about the face, and soft white liberty satin ribbons draw it together under the chin. Chink silk is used as a lining for the hood proper, and an exceptionally effective cap can be made by sprinkling the net over its outer surface, though not too thickly, with silvery spangles.

Printed chiffon scarfs for wear with evening dress become lovelier each winter, and the girl who loves an extra touch of daintiness on her old pieces of evening finery tucks a piece of accordion plaited silk about two inches in width around the entire edge of the delicately tinted scarf.

More elegant and very much the thing this winter are the triangular Spanish lace scarfs in cream or black, and she is a fortunate woman indeed who has one of these precious head coverings laid away among the bandboxes handed down from her grandmother's day.

Of the many unusual bags brought out by Christmas-giving none is prettier or more novel than the receptacle built of wide pompadour ribbon for carrying slippers, fan and handkerchief to dancing school or evening cotillon. Ribbon six to eight inches in width, with half-inch satin border, has its edges overcast together in self-tone silk so that the satin stripe extends down the center of the bag, as shown in the illustration. At the bottom of the bag the ribbon is sewed together in a point, and the top is finished by four hemmed and dog-eared ends which rise two inches above the draw ribbon which closes the bag.

With the continued vogue of the long glove the glove garter has come to be quite an important adjunct to evening finery, and both embroidery and imitation jewels are used to make them dainty without being ornate. The let garters pictured in the drawing furnish a very brilliant adornment for the up-per part of the arm when long black gloves are worn with very short sleeves. Large diamond shaped pieces of jet are fastened on beaded black elastic to form these arm bands, and a smart little black surah bow gives the finishing touch.

For white and colored gloves some of the garters are very elaborate, with embroidered bands showing a fine pattern done in colorings to match the gown they accompany, and wide or narrow frills of lace falling from the lower edge and a tiny edging of Valenciennes finishing the upper edge.

Theater hats are tiny, mere knots of ribbon, flowers and feathers. Most of these hats are crownless, allowing the puffs or curls to show through masses of flowers or feathers.

EVENING TRIFLES.

in her native land," and displaying, considering his friends and his country, a fine sense of humor. With J. M. Barrie, Ellen Charles Frohman had pulling session, who can tell what the former "Pink Fairy" thought of the "Pink Fairy" HAYDEN CHURCH.

Veritable Ovation.

Miss Mary and Mary Marble, the daughters of the "Wonderful Two," were made the recipients of a veritable ovation at the recent opening of the new Jefferson Theater, Kansas. At the close of the performance, which was prolonged until after midnight, the entire audience waited on the stage down the aisle, and then came out and then took them to the carriage and hotel, where they were given cheers.

Louisville Club Gets Catcher Pietz and Pitcher Moskman from Pittsburgh Pirates.

MANAGER CHIVINGTON, of the Louisville Baseball Club, last night announced that he had purchased two players from the Pittsburgh club. One of these is Catcher Heintz Pietz, who will do most of the backstop work for the Colonels during the coming season. The other man is Pitcher "Doc" Moskman.

Catcher Pietz is well known to all the fans throughout the country, but Pitcher Moskman is new to this league. He was secured by Barney Dreyfus at the close of last season for the Pittsburgh club from the Jersey City club of the Eastern League. The Jersey City club had purchased Moskman from the California League, where he was a bright particular star. Several clubs have been after him, but Dreyfus secured the young man and turned him and Catcher Pietz over to the Louisville club in exchange for Catcher Al Shaw.

The purchase of Moskman rounds out the Colonels' pitching staff for next season and no attempt will be made to secure any additional twirlers. Manager Chivington said last night that several deals were on and that he would be announced as soon as they are consummated. Pietz will probably be the field captain of the Colonels unless a better man is secured between now and time for the season to open.

In signing the articles for the wrestling match between Marvin Hart and Alex Swanson, scheduled to take place January 13 at Loderkrantz Hall, it has been specified that the referee shall be named on the evening of the contest. It appears that considerable feeling has developed over the feature and promises to result in a lively squabble.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Despite the threatening weather there was a banner half-holiday crowd in attendance this afternoon to witness the conclusion of the second meeting at the Fair Grounds. Monday the scene shifts back to the City Park course, where the running will be taken up for twelve racing days.

The book presented for City Park calls for seven races each day, and the purses aggregate $4,000 daily. Two stakes will be run during the coming week, the Old Hickory and the Tulane. The total amount to be hung up during the first six days aggregates $25,500, a record in itself.

The racing this afternoon was marred by a questionable decision, which came in the form of a protest, even to the judges, which Toboggan was returned the winner. Many thought, and these were in the majority, that Charlie Eastman, which was placed second, had succeeded in getting up in the last code of strikes, and when the judges hung out the number of Toboggan a most vociferous demonstration occurred. A motley crowd surrounded the judges, and the scene grew ugly, with cat calls and boos, demanding that the numbers be changed.

This, of course, the officials refused to do, and the crowd, feeling the demonstration for several minutes, ordered the race to be run. The scene shifted back to the City Park course, where the running will be taken up for twelve racing days.

Many thought, and these were in the majority, that Charlie Eastman, which was placed second, had succeeded in getting up in the last code of strikes, and when the judges hung out the number of Toboggan a most vociferous demonstration occurred. A motley crowd surrounded the judges, and the scene grew ugly, with cat calls and boos, demanding that the numbers be changed.

This, of course, the officials refused to do, and the crowd, feeling the demonstration for several minutes, ordered the race to be run. The scene shifted back to the City Park course, where the running will be taken up for twelve racing days.

The book presented for City Park calls for seven races each day, and the purses aggregate $4,000 daily. Two stakes will be run during the coming week, the Old Hickory and the Tulane. The total amount to be hung up during the first six days aggregates $25,500, a record in itself.

The racing this afternoon was marred by a questionable decision, which came in the form of a protest, even to the judges, which Toboggan was returned the winner. "If this is so," said he, "it will make that Henley regatta a business loss for London. Why not? The London men will surely know all about that Centenary regatta, and the regatta of the Cadine Barge Club, for he was treasurer of the committee which handled the regatta."

Paid Their Own Bills.

Mr. Tucker, when asked if the London crew had received any financial help while it was in this city in 1870, said very positively: "No, I am sure the Englishmen paid their own way while here, for I handed every penny of the funds raised to defray the necessary expenses of the regatta. I am sure that the London men at the best time we could in the way of entertainment, but they paid their own way. I am sure they were lodged at a little house on Brown street, I

Write today for this free book

If you would like to know about a country where men are making from $100 to $300 an acre clear profit on land that costs from $5 to $10 an acre, you should send for this book.

In it 53 farmers tell in their own words, just what they are doing—and it is mighty interesting reading.

This is what one of them has to say:

"I had three and one-half acres in ribbon-cane, and after putting up one acre of my poorest cane for seed next year I worked up the remaining two and one-half acres into old fashioned open kettle (evaporator) syrup, which made 1,077 gallons. I sold the greater part of it right in Tyler for 50 cents a gallon, the remainder I sold at 45 cents. I measured the best acre of cane that I had, and it made 530 gallons."

F. A. WOODWARD, Flint, Texas.

Hundreds of others are doing the same thing every year. Doesn't it occur to you that here is your opportunity? If you own a farm in the North why not sell it and invest in land in East Texas where you can make an independent fortune? If you are renting, there is all the more reason for going to East Texas. There is no experiment about it. So many men are making big money there, that it has become a certainty.

The secret of these successes is that the crops are always big and the climate being mild, they mature so early that the growers get fancy prices for all they raise.

It requires no experience you do not possess to make a success in East Texas.

Write today for a free copy of the book

It will be the means of starting you on the road to success.

If you become interested in East Texas you can make a trip of investigation at very small cost. On the first and third Tuesday of each month you can purchase one way or round trip tickets via the Cotton Belt from Chicago, St. Louis, Thebes, Cairo, Memphis, and many other points to East Texas at a fraction of the regular rate.

Write for free copy of book and full information about rates, schedules, etc. from your own home.

PROTECT YOUR WATER PIPES.

The Louisville Water Company has given notice that when the new filter is put in operation the pressure on water pipes will be about twice what it is at present, and unless some precaution is taken your pipes will burst and house flooded.

Protect your property from an accident of this kind by placing a

on your pipe. With this machine the pressure can be made as light as you wish. These valves are inexpensive, and can be supplied by any plumber.

FROM SOUTH

Memphis Club Planning To Give Its Usual Spring Meeting.

WANT TWENTY-ONE DAYS.

Racing Firm of M. H. Tichenor & Co. To Retire From Active Participation In Racing.

MADDEN'S HORSES AT WORK.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Western and Southern horsemen looking for future places to race have been employed during the recent week by the news which was given official corroboration that the New Memphis Jockey Club would hold the usual spring meeting at Montgomery Park. Application for dates will be made at the next monthly meeting of Western Jockey Club stewards and stakes for the meeting will be shortly announced to include the Tennessee Derby Oaks, the famous Montgomery Handicap, and all old-time classics that have been annually renewed for many years. For the first time in its history the Tennessee Derby will be provided with conditions that will enable owners to enter with prospects of weight allowances and penalties. Hereafter the Derby has been a weight-for-age affair with colts, fillies and geldings running at equal scale. Judgments for the month in which the race is run. Secretary Macfarlan, of the Jockey Club, revised the conditions of the race by many years ago so that so far as producing the best horse on the day the race was run, no excuse could be made in weight argument for the defeated candidate, for there were no penalties nor allowances.

It is practically understood among horsemen here that the meeting will begin April 15 and continue twenty-one racing days as has been the custom in the past.

Much speculation has been indulged in over the prospective racing bill that may be introduced into the State Legislature, which convenes early next week. Few horsemen can be found that take but the most optimistic view of the future. Governor M. R. Patterson has been for many years a member of the Memphis Jockey Club. His name appears to-day among the list of members. During his campaign, which witnessed many stump speeches in various sections of the State, where the anti-racing element were looked on as holding a winning hand, Gov. Patterson stated with emphasis that he was a racing bill introduced to prohibit pool selling, that he would not fight the measure. But horsemen pretend to see now in the remarks of Gov. Patterson that he does not intend to take sides against racing as it has been conducted, and for that reason it is not believed that the General Assembly at the coming session will enact any law that would interfere with the plans of the racing associations here and at Nashville for the present term at least.

A racing commission to be appointed by the Governor, who is a resident of this city, is confidently anticipated. What the views of the local officials are on this subject cannot be learned, but it is known that any members of such a commission who would attempt to grant dates for less than a two-weeks' or eleven-day meeting, would not meet with favor here, the view being taken that the Memphis Club has always supported, with the aid of the public, a meeting of twenty-one days duration; that the amount of money hung up for horsemen here could not be offered with a limited meeting in progress, and that cheaper stakes and purses as arranged against the liberal list always heretofore offered would mean the arrival here of an inferior class of thoroughbreds. It is believed that the Nashville club, which has rarely in the past few years offered meetings of more than twelve days, will favor a law limiting racing on any one track to two weeks.

If present plans of M. H. Tichenor & Co., whose colors have been seen on Western tracks for several seasons, measure the Chicago firm will hardly be represented among the owners competing at Eastern courses the coming season. Henry McDaniel, who has handled the string for several seasons, developing many good colts, including Good Luck, is in charge of a remnant of the once powerful stable, and Tichenor & Co. have placed a price on every member of the stable with a view of retiring from thoroughbred competition. The Tichenor list in full is:

Good Luck, b. h. 4, by Sandringham-Pocketpiece.

Hammersway, b. g. 4, by Hamburg-Clementina.

Eddie Ware, ch. c. 3, by The Conqueror-Pennitrip.

Unnamed br. f. 2, by Dr. Rice-Constance IV.

The victory New Year's day in New Orleans of Robert Tucker's two-year-old filly, Whisk Broom, in the first race for juveniles offered east of the Rocky Mountains, caused justification among local trainers and owners not only for the enormous amounts they won backing the filly, but owing to the belief entertained by many that there are scores of two-year-old colts or fillies being prepared here for the coming season. Whisk Broom, who is handling fourteen two-year-olds at the local course for Robert Tucker, trained Whisk Broom and shipped her South to Tucker several weeks ago. He is also of the opinion that Mr. Tucker owns several youngsters superior to Whisk Broom. Whisk Broom was one of the cheapest of fourteen yearlings purchased by Tucker for this year's use, her price at the sale being $800. On account of her size and other things, she was in the trials, it is hardly predicted that she will be a great success in racing, as was attained by her half-sister, Broomstick, winner of the Brighton Handicap and the Kentucky Handicap, winner of the 1906 Montgomery Handicap and Effendi, winner of the New Orleans New Year's Handicap, all of which can lay claim to being the produce of Mr. Tucker's stable.

From plans unfolded here on a visit to his horses Mr. Tucker is evidently intent on starting the next season with the great majority of his string, which was purchased by him last season, at the three-year-old level last season, after he severed connection with the racing establishment of Capt. W. Harry Brown.

News from Clifton Park, Little Rock, is to the effect that John E. Madden is represented by some future cracks in the list. Madden is engaged in what horsemen call "the South-eastern" "experimental training" this year, as he has selected the mild climate of Arkansas as a location to train part of his string while an equal amount are wintering at Washington, D. C. Madden has two sons, daughters of Ogden, Hamburg, Mithril, Bally Hoo, Day and Sandringham at both Clifton Park and Little Rock. Madden's methods adopted by Patterson in handling Mr. Madden's representatives, Dan and Ireland, and Salvator are at Little Rock. It is announced that slow preparations are being made for the coming season, which indicates that they will not be among the list to go to the post in any of the Western races in early spring.

After making a fortune in timber land in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, mingling at times with the Hatfields, McGoys and other Kentucky feudists, R. L. Thomas, who was a prominent campaigner on Western and Eastern tracks twenty years ago, will return to the turf this season with a costly collection of John Ireland, who will also show his colors once carried by Ireland from string. Both the Ireland and Thomas stables are in lock training and will make their debut at H. S. Sires, Zulu, Ireland, Irish Duke and other horses, with which race-goers were familiar in the last '96 carried the Thomas colors, Ire-

Former Tammany Leader Has Promising Derby Candidate In Colt By Orme.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PLACE.

R. CATTANACH, of New York, once a prominent turfman, having raised some well-known cross-country performers well back in the '80s, recently spent a day with Richard Croker, the former Tammany chieftain, at the latter's estate in Ireland, where he is breeding and rearing candidates for the great turf prizes of England and Ireland. Mr. Croker has not been as successful on the turf this year as he was last, when he headed the list in Ireland, and there were reports that he had parted in anger with his former trainer, J. J. Parkinson. At any rate, the American's racehorses are no longer trained by Parkinson and there are candidates for the position on this side of the ocean.
